The above discussion is provided for general information. For more specific information concerning water rights, please contact an attorney or Water Rights in California, and (3) Appropriation of Water in California.

Proposes a new appropriation upstream from their diversion, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional water is available for future uses. Since 1914, new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State. Appropriative rights can be granted to waters "foreign" to the natural stream.

An appropriate right is a surplus not needed by riparian users. Generally, appropriate rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus of water available land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriate rights may be exercised from the State. Appropriative rights can be granted to waters "foreign" to the natural stream system.

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water on his riparian land. Riparian land must be in the same watershed as the water source and must never have been severed from the sources of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the severed parcel. Generally, a riparian user must share the water supply with other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water or divert use of groundwater, or other "foreign" water to the natural stream a different watershed, water previously stored by others, return flows from use of groundwater, or other riparian users in riparian rights to the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water or divert use of groundwater, or other riparian users in the same watershed as the water source and must never have been severed from the sources of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the severed parcel. Generally, a riparian user must share the water supply with other riparian users.

There are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriate rights.

The above discussion is provided for general information, to those specific individuals concerning water rights, please contact our attorney or write to this office. We have several pamphlets available. They include: (1) Statement of Water Division and Use, (2) Information Pertaining to Water Rights in California, and (3) Appropriation of Water in California.

Statement of Water Diversions and Use must be filed by preparan and pre 1914 appropratitive water users as set forth in Water Code section 5100 with specific exceptions. The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water use, (2) enables the State to notify such users if someone proposes a new appropriation upstream from their diversions, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional water is available for future appropriations.

here are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriative rights.

GENERAL INFORMATION PERTAINING TO WATER RIGHTS IN CALIFORNIA

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water from his riparian land must be in the same water shed as the water source and never have been served from the sources of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the servient parcel. Generally, a riparian water user must share the water supply with other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for later use or to divert water which originates in a different watershed, or return flows from ground water.

Statement of Water Diversions and Use must be filed by a preparian and pre-1914 appropriative water users. GENERAL INFORMATION PERTAINING TO WATER RIGHTS IN CALIFORNIA

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water on his riparian land. Riparian land must be in the same watershed as the water source and must never have been severed from the source of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the severed parcel. Generally, a riparian user must share the water supply with other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for later use or to divert water which originates in a different watershed, or return flows from use of groundwater.

An appropriate right is required for use of water on nonriparian land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriative rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. Since 1914 new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State.

Statement of Water Diversion and Use must be filed by riparian and pre-1914 appropriative water users. The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water use, (2) enables the State to notify such users if someone proposes a new appropriation upstream from their diversion, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional diversion concerning water rights, please contact an attorney or write to this office. We have several pamphlets available. They include:

Statements of Water Diversion and Use must be filed by riparian and pre-1914 appropriative water users. The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water appropriated from their diversion, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional upstream from notify such users if someone proposes a new appropriation use, (2) enables the State to notify such users if there is a surplus water is available for future appropriators.

An appropriative right is required for use of water on nonriparian land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriative rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. Since 1914 new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State.

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take the water source and never have been severed from the source of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the severed parcel. Generally, a riparian user must share the water supply with other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for later use or to divert water which originates in a different watershed, or return flows from use of groundwater.

There are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriative rights.
